Berlin to Agree to Terms; Wirth to Form Cabinet

Acceptance of Reparation Demands Expected in Reichstag; Opposition to Allied Conditions Dwindles Rapidly.

(By Associated Press.)
Berlin.—Acceptance of the allied ultimatum relative to reparations was expected in the reichstag Tuesday when that body convened. The centrists and the majority socialists, as a result of their conferences Monday, were believed to have definitely aligned themselves in favor of yielding to the entente demands, and, while the democratic and German peoples parties held a long session Monday night debating the matter, it was felt that opposition to the allied terms was rapidly dwindling.

Party leaders admitted there would be a safe majority in the reichstag in favor of accepting the allied reparations ultimatum.

The note sent to Berlin by Premier Briand of France, in which Germany was informed that the sending of government troops into Upper Silesia would be considered by France as a violation of the Versailles treaty had an influence on the part of several deputies to join the elements ready to accept the allied ultimatum.

Wirth to Form Cabinet
Dr. Wirth, former minister of finance in the cabinet of Chancellor Papenbach, has agreed to attempt to form a new cabinet.

Dr. Wirth came into prominence in German national politics early last year when he entered the cabinet of Chancellor Brüning as minister of the treasury. He served in that capacity through the life of the Brüning government and last June was appointed minister of finance when Chancellor Brüning resigned which presented its resignation last week.

Leader of Center Party
Dr. Wirth, a member of the center or clerical party, was formerly a minister of finance in the Brüning government. He has long been one of the leaders of the center party in south Germany.

Disputed said French troops crossed the Ruhr and occupied various points in the town of Muelheim.

ARNOLD'S PLEA TO IMPEACH BLAINE FALLS ON DEAF EARS

Madison.—The assembly Tuesday morning summarily disposed of the petition by Victor E. Arnold, president of the Madison Bond company, calling for impeachment of Gov. John J. Blaine, when it voted unanimously to refuse to receive the communication.

Arnold had asked that he be permitted to appear before a committee of the lower house or before a committee of the whole assembly, advising that he was prepared to make an appeal to the assembly, but the committee had denied him an audience on a busy day. He wanted to tell the executive of his troubles which had developed over charges he had made against Governor Blaine, and had made a statement to the effect that he was prepared to make an appeal to the assembly, but the committee had denied him an audience on a busy day. Oshkosh.—At least five business establishments in this city donated to a bold, smooth stranger who sought small amounts of goods and then presented checks ranging from $12 to $25.50, taking the balance in cash. The paper, most of it in blanks of local cash and dollar bills, was found by a man, about 25 years of age, decided to disappear when a meat dealer got suspicious and telephoned for the police.

DRUNKEN NEGRO TAKES SNOOZE IN CITY HALL OFFICE

(Special to the Gazette.)
Lunch snoring emanating from the office of City Assessor Frank L. Smith in the city hall Monday afternoon, caused an investigation by Municipal Judge H. L. Maxwell.

In one of the chairs in Mr. Smith's office he saw a coal black negro in a drunken stupor fast asleep, probably dreaming about moonshine, dice and the sweet plinkety-plink of banjos. Roused from his slumber, the colored man was arrested by the judge and dragged down stairs to finish his sleep in the city lock-up.

In court Tuesday morning, he gave his name as Harry Williams and his home as Janesville where he said he is a janitor. He told the customary story about the moonshine, dice and banjos. "I got it from a fella in Beloit," he said.

"I don't know his name," he said, "but he was a fella who picked me up and took me to the lock-up." "No, not a thing," said Williams. "The last time I was in the lock-up was when I was picked up by a fella who picked me up and took me to the lock-up."

"I was pretty drunk," he said, "but I'll never come back. I've got a family in Madison and I'll be back to work today. I'll be back to work today. I'll be back to work today."

"There's a train leaving for Madison in ten minutes," said the court. "Can you get it?" "I shush can judge," he exclaimed, and he hurried out the door to the Northwestern station.

"Don't come back again," was the court's advice.

66 Deaths in Janesville is Lower Than '20

Mortality statistics show that Janesville has had 66 deaths so far this year as compared to 82 during the corresponding period of time in 1920. The figures were compiled by Dr. J. C. Welch, city health officer.

From January 1 until April 1 there were ten infants died in Janesville under one year of age, showing the importance of needed medical and health work among infants.

Heart trouble was the cause of 11 deaths, tubercular trouble 5 deaths and pneumonia 6. Four deaths were caused from cancer. Three deaths were from diphtheria.

The health report shows that there were five cases of diphtheria last week. No additional cases have been reported this week to the department.

The number of cases of diphtheria during the last six months is decreasing. Great precaution is urged by the health department in the curbing of this disease.

Numerous casualties are reported to have occurred at the Krandzh railway station when the Poles drove out the Germans after three days continuous fighting.

City Bills Can Be Paid With Only Six Officials Knowing What Is Done

Heretofore no member of the board of aldermen has known what bills he has been voting for when the report of the finance committee has been made. The report is read only so far as a stock and stereotyped resolution is attached to the bills. Then the mayor and clerk are authorized to sign orders for vouchers numbered from seven sixty to sixty-nine or more or less as the number of bills appear.

Last spring there was something of a disturbance over the bills of the board of education and the council was insistent on having publication of accounts made each month so that the public would be informed as to what the board was spending its money for.

Six Will Know

But the public has never been able to say where the city money went. No publication has been made and should the finance committee be determining it would be only the members of that committee, the mayor and clerk who draw the orders and the treasurer who pays them, to know what had been authorized, six officials in all, besides the man who made the bill. There would be under the system in vogue 11 members of the council who would not know for what they were voting as the finance committee is made up of three members. Even the city attorney would not be informed.

Secretary of League Asked

The Gazette wrote to Floyd MacGregor, secretary of the Wisconsin League of municipalities as to what was the course generally pursued in giving publicity to the bills and proceedings of the council. He replies as follows:

MacGregor's Letter

Madison, May 9, 1921.

Editor Gazette:

It is my understanding that all council proceedings, as well as merely ordinances and resolutions, must be published. At least, this is the rule under the general charter law. Section 925-401 provides as follows:

"In any city of the second, third or fourth class the official proceedings of regular and special meetings of the city council shall be published in some newspaper printed in said city in such manner as the city council shall direct."

The proceedings of school boards are required to be published in the same manner. Section 925-46m provides:

"The official proceedings of regular and special meetings of boards of education in all incorporated cities and villages in this state, including a full statement of all receipts and expenditures, shall be printed and published in such manner as the board of education shall direct."

Section 925-46a provides the method of selecting the official paper and the publication of official advertising therein.

It is my understanding that even in the special charter cities the general practice is to publish the proceedings as well as the official ordinances and resolutions.

If I can give you any further information, I shall be glad to do so upon request.

Very truly yours,
Floyd H. MacGregor.

Daland, Sick, Is Obligated to Quit Teaching.

The Gazette Correspondent.]

MILTON.—After several unsuccessful attempts to meet his classes regularly in spite of poor health, Dr. William C. Daland, president of Milton college, has finally been obliged to give up teaching altogether for the remainder of the school year. Dr. Daland has been under the constant care of physicians for several months, but it was generally believed he would be able to keep up his spring schedule of working during the remaining few weeks before commencement. During his illness he has been meeting a few classes at his home, leaving others to be taught by assistants.

Dr. Daland's announcement of the president's temporary retirement was made Monday by Prof. A. E. Whitford, college registrar, who will be acting president during the absence of Dr. Daland.

Marquette.—Dr. A. Lindberg, state inspector of institutions, has received word that the body of his youngest son, Rudy Lindberg, is on its way here from Finland. WINNERS OF MUSIC CONTEST HERE GET TRIP TO MADISON Janesville schools were represented in a music night reading contest at Madison, Tuesday, by eight children of the fifth and sixth grades, competing with eight children of the Stoughton schools. The eight who motored up Tuesday morning, with Miss P. O. Holt and Miss Dorothy Stephens, accompanied by Miss Florence Snyder, are Ellen Corbett, Jefferson, Margaret Knuth, Washington, Miss Meyers, Adams, Imogene Robbins, Adams, Robert Pierson, Washington, Earl Miller, Garfield, and Harold Rasmussen and William Tunstead of the Adams.

The contest consisted of recognizing chromatics and signatures, and knowing and being able to accent all rhythms and also being able to sing in the major and minor modes. It began at one o'clock at the music school of the university, members of the faculty acting as judges. The participants will return Tuesday evening.

School Bill to Come Up This Week in Senate.

Advice received from Madison by Mayor T. E. Welsh indicates that the Peterson bill, which provides for the reorganization of school boards, giving them independent taxing and borrowing power, will be reported out for passage by the senate committee on judiciary this week. The senate is expected to act upon it immediately.

"This bill is bad in that it would heavily increase the city's taxes," said Mayor Welsh. "It would give the school board bonding power up to 5 percent to buy sites for new schools and make additions to present sites. Another provision is that the school board may make up a budget each year up to 2 percent of the assessed valuation—the size of our tax rate for everything this year. On the basis of our present assessed valuation, the school board could authorize a budget of $600,000 and the bill says the council shall incorporate this into its city budget."

It would also give the school board borrowing power up to 100 percent instead of only 20 percent as at present.

Janesville was represented at the hearing held on this bill March 2. The bill has laid in committee since that date—no further hearings have been held and the amendments are not yet printed.

"Should your city again take action on the bill, it must be communicated directly to your senator to be effective," writes Ford H. MacGregor, secretary of the League of Wisconsin Municipalities.

French Housekeepers See Prices Drop Slightly

PARIS.—The cost of living in France has decreased slightly since a year ago while the price of many necessities remains unchanged. Meat of all kinds is as dear as a year ago, despite the fact that livestock on the hoof sells much cheaper. A decrease is noticed by the butchers after an ultimatum by the minister of provisions. Bread and butter remains high. French housekeepers calculate that household expenses show only a slight diminution on the whole.

What is the value of a coat of Paint?

ASK any real estate man. He will tell you that a $5000 house properly painted will immediately command $5500 to $6000 in the market—and the increase on higher-priced houses is strictly in proportion.

Isn't that a striking example of the value of good paint?

We are pretty fair judges of paint—couldn't stay in business otherwise—and we will stack Du Pont Paints and Varnishes up against any others produced in this country. Stands to reason that folks who have been making paints for over a hundred years know what is required and HOW.

Glad to show you the way to boost the value of your home to a purchaser—or to yourself. Especially yourself.

Come to see us about paint.

Editor Gazette: A statement by the mayor was published in Saturday night's Gazette on clean-up week. If Evansville has a reputation of being a clean city, a stranger coming from the east would have a different opinion. We people who live on East Main street petitioned the council in February to oil the street and the second week of May, we are smothered in dust mixed with road oil. If the city wishes to do something toward sanitation, get busy and oil our street.

TO HIRE NINE FOR PLAYGROUND WORK

Would Increase Number of Directors to Make System More Successful.

Preliminary steps in working out the 1922 playground system were taken by the board of education at its regular May meeting Monday night by vesting power in the playground committee, of which Mrs. Alice Holmes is chairman, to hire a superintendent and eight helpers. In the past there have been five in the work.

Mrs. Holmes and other members of the committee made a survey of the situation and decided that the best plan is to have a general superintendent over the playgrounds and both beaches and to have a general superintendent in their work, to take charge of the separate playgrounds and to arrange their time so that one could take charge of the west side beach most of the time, the general superintendent to run the east side beach.

Four Girl Directors.

There will also be hired for girl or women directors for the younger children, these four also to be trained for this work. Under this plan it is thought that the general director will have more time to work out his program and that the playgrounds will be much more successful than last year. The committee also recommended that G. E. Linden, Madison, who directed the grounds last summer, be rehired and they will meet with him to discuss the matter. An $1500 is appropriated by the city in the budget for the beaches. It is thought that the expenses will easily come under the amount allotted altogether, $3500.

Talk Manager Plan

Little other business of importance was transacted at the meeting. There was a discussion of the advisability of hiring a business manager to work in the office, but no action was taken, further than to appoint a committee, composed of E. C. Grant, G. A. Oleson and Mrs. Alice Holmes, to look into the matter and report at the June meeting. If such an office is created, it will be taking one step further in bringing the school system up-to-date. The duties of such an officer would be to act as purchasing agent, to have charge of the janitors, to tend to the work of repairing in the buildings and to run the accounting system at the office.

It was reported that there was $55,080 in the treasury, the amount being higher than that of last month because of the state money received.

The board ordered the bills paid for the music for the cantata given the Congregational church. The $290 received from the recital will be kept as a reserve; it was voted for buying records for the phonographs, one of which is in each school.

To Fill Cellars

William Hemming was ordered to see to the filling in of the old cellars on the site for the new high school on South Main street. These have been dangerous spots for some time and the walls will now be torn down and the holes filled in.

It was reported that the school buildings are in fairly good shape and will need no repairing until the term is ended. Some improvements will be made on the Grant school grounds.

The specifications for the rebuilding of the cupola of the Jefferson school, which has become a menace, in its present condition, were received and the building committee will secure contractors to bid. It will be several months before this work will be completed and temporary repairs will be made immediately.

Inspector Is Hired.

The matter of payment of Van Ryn and De Gelleke, the architects, for the new high school plans was discussed but as all were in favor of the contract as made some time ago, no further action was taken. An inspector for the new building, E. J. Craig, is being hired by the architects and has already made his home in this city ready to act as soon as work is started. He was inspector for the Parker pen building.

Supr. F. O. Holt agreed to sell the two old steam engines that have recently been replaced with new ones. P. C. Grant, E. J. Haumerson and Charles Mungleton were made members of the finance committee for this month and the meeting was adjourned.

DRY ENFORCEMENT OFFICER ARRESTED

Milwaukee.—Dart P. Herzog, in charge of the enforcement of prohibition in Milwaukee and the rest of the eastern district of Wisconsin, was arrested Tuesday on a federal warrant. The charge is conspiracy to violate the prohibition act by the possession, transportation and sale of intoxicating liquors, and to defraud the government.

HARDING GUIDED BY BUSINESS POLICY

Revival of Trade Not Party Politics Is Factor in Allied Situation.

BY DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington—America's decision to enter the allied councils and to use her moral support to compel a satisfactory adjustment of the German reparations controversy is as much based on economic as political considerations—a desire to bring about a revival of business in the United States—as on anything political.

The ripple of complaint which emanated from the Capitol Hill who are inclined to see the European affairs from the political angle, particularly as something consistent or inconsistent with campaign speeches, have failed to secure the executive branch of the government from its determination to bring about an era of business prosperity irrespective of how the formula affects the purely political side of things.

Sees Return to Normalcy
The commonly accepted statement of Secretary Charles Evans Hughes and Robert Hoover are in accordance with the policy of President Harding is only partially correct. There are others in the cabinet who feel that the big thing before the Harding administration today is the revival of business—the return to normalcy. Therefore, when the question came up in the cabinet as to whether the invitation of the allies to join in their councils should be accepted, the point was how acceptance or rejection would affect the future of American business.

Officials recognize that until the allies have a satisfactory adjustment of the reparations owed them by Germany, the allies will be unable to make satisfactory payments on the money they owe the United States. Our government refuses formally to recognize the relationship and will not consider any suspension of its foreign debt from the allies to the backs of who Germany, but nevertheless the Washington government is not ignoring the relationship of Germany's payments to the capacity of the allies to pay America.

Consider Moral Effect
The Harding administration considered seriously the embarrassing position in which America would be placed if she declined to use her moral force alongside the allies when Germany made her proposal to mediate. If the United States had taken a position which the allies believed was encouraging the Germans to evade their obligations, it might have resulted in a sentiment among the allied governments to the effect that America had correspondingly prevented the allies from meeting their obligations. To collect from the allies in other words, it was necessary for America to help the allies get their money from Germany.

Such, in brief, is the Harding policy, and whether or not it pleases the "economic" element is something that has by force of circumstance been made a secondary consideration. President Harding naturally wanted the complete support of his party but in cases of division he must rely on public opinion. The feeling in executive quarters is that the country is back of Mr. Harding in his efforts to bring about a return of normal business conditions.

Stress Clear of Entanglements
He is still as insistent as ever that the course of our government will be so carefully steered that involvement in European politics will be avoided. But against those who claim that the participation in allied councils is a step toward the entry of the United States in the league of nations, the answer is made that for the present the Harding administration is looking at things purely upon an economic basis. To reduce taxes, for instance, there must be more revenue available from more sources. To make the American people better able to pay their taxes they must be in a position to make money; they must have places to sell their goods abroad. To sell profitably they must put their products within the reach of the foreign purchaser. Until international exchange is stabilized, would-be purchasers cannot buy. That's the cycle of present day economic and the Harding administration is trying by every means possible to break it by a stable basis of international exchange, which, it is expected, would be followed by a revival of export trade and the reopening of American factories that now are shut down.

Not Playing Politics
The Harding administration believes that the policy of making the Germans pay their debt is good business policy for America; that the assistance given the allies by sitting in their councils prevents any excuse that America herself is preventing the allies from paying the ten billions of dollars they owe the United States. Sound business policy—not campaign politics—is the basis of the Harding policy, and that's why Mr. Hughes, in the department of state, and Mr. Hoover, in the department of commerce, who are most concerned with foreign trade, are considered the chief influences in the situation. But behind them is the practically unanimous sentiment of the cabinet—the security of the treasury, who feels that business will be revived when European questions are settled; the vice president, who in a public speech said the prosperity of America was dependent on a large extent on the settlement of international questions, the secretary of agriculture, who wants to see foreign markets for the farmer's products; and so all along the line. It's business and not party politics.

FARMERS ASKED TO GIVE DAY'S MILK MONEY TO CHINA

Southern Wisconsin farmers are called upon for a novel contribution to the Chinese relief fund by Chris J. Schroeder, secretary of the Wisconsin Farm Bureau. The appeal is made on the grounds that the afflicted region of China is farm land—a plea for Wisconsin farmers to answer a cry for help among their co-workers in the Asiatic.

The campaign in Rock county is being undertaken by County Agricultural Agent R. T. Glasco. Rock county farmers will be asked to contribute the receipts of one day's milking toward the Wisconsin Farm Bureau fund. Illinois farmers contributed by the donation of corn and small grains. Southern Wisconsin being a dairy center, the appeal is being made here on dairy products.

Let each farmer at each cheese factory, creamery or condenser, contribute the equivalent of one morning's milking in cash out of his next milk check, writes Secretary Schroeder. "This plan will not disarrange present market conditions. Farmers cannot ship dairy products to China for it is impracticable."

Pledges are to be printed to be distributed among the farmers in southern Wisconsin. The extension of aid to the stricken Chinese district was first considered at the county recent conference. The giving of small grains, especially corn, was declared impracticable because there was not a grain surplus in Wisconsin. A total of 500 bushels of grain and corn have been given by other states through farm organizations.

"I am heartily in favor of the milk plan," said County Agent Glasco. "If each farmer would give just one day's receipts, it would amount to a material amount and not be noticed by the farmer."

pendent to a large extent on the settlement of international questions, the secretary of agriculture, who wants to see foreign markets for the farmer's products; and so all along the line. It's business and not party politics.

AT THE THEATRES

The Apollo theatre has a screen hit in the film dramatization of Anna Sewall's "Black Beauty" as indicated by the crowds which packed the theatre for four exhibitions Monday. "Black Beauty" has the happy ability and talent to please children, to whom the book is a charm, and also the adults who could not help but admire the film.

The real judge of any film is the individual spectator—go and see "Black Beauty"—for it is a film worth seeing. The picture is refreshing in its atmosphere, human and kind in its message, so clean in its purpose, that it cannot help but enliven the heart of Apollo patrons. You may think that a thoroughbred horse cannot act for the "movies." With the pasture and stable scenes of "Black Beauty" will convince you that horses can understand a director, for they seem to talk.

There's "Ginger" the grey mate of "Black Beauty," who "tells" the story and a score of other horses just like the book. The horses show scenes of comedy, drama and pictorial beauty. There is the celebrated fox hunt scene, the fire in the stable and last of all the thrilling races in which Black Beauty twice serves his master. Any man or woman who can see Black Beauty and then go out and apply a whip mercilessly to a horse or case them without consideration, must be dumb to any human appeal.

And how the children enjoyed the film. They laughed and they cried just like every one did when they read the book. "Black Beauty" made his last race jumping hurdles, racing in front of a moving train and then the climax thrill to clear a railroad cut while a train was moving below. There are scenes of brilliant riding, especially during the fox hunt scene which is a work of film art and beauty.

The inside story of the film adds sufficient weight to the horse pictures to weave an acceptable human plot to the film. The scenes are laid during the early part of the century in England and the customs worn are in delight. There is naturalness about the acting which makes the characters really live—the restlessness of Jean Paige as Jessie Gordon was not a bit of an overstatement. She rarely acted with approval by winsomeness and ability.

One might go on and tell more about "Black Beauty" but there is one way to know about the film—go and see.

The Vitaphone production is to be repeated at the Apollo Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday with a children's matinee Tuesday afternoon.

THAT "GET-TOGETHER" MEETING FRIDAY NIGHT.
One of the big things for Janesville is the "Get-together" meeting on Friday night. The presence here of one of the most eloquent and earnest men in the country, one who has been in the forward movement of a live city, a mayor and a preacher of the militant gospel, the Rev. Russell E. Brady, of Pontiac, Michigan, would in itself be a magnet to attract attention. Dean Ryan will preside and every person interested in the upbuilding and welfare of the city, labor and industry, professional men, women workers and women of the home, ought to pack the Congregational church on the occasion. It really is not an occasion, it is an event.

In the hard school of experience Germany is looking for high marks.

THE CASE OF JOHN DIETZ.
That a pardon will be granted John Dietz is generally believed by those who are near the governor. There will be few if any to object. It was never clearly established that Dietz did kill the deputy sheriff, Oscar Harp, ten years ago. The trial was long and hard fought on one side only. On the prosecution's side was arrayed some of the best legal talent. Dietz, stubborn, wilful and exorbitant, discharged his lawyer and tried his own case. He had a mean disposition, was quarrelsome and his own neighbors never had any real use for him. He was a trouble maker and a community nuisance in the section around Winter and the Thornapple dam. An investigation at Winter, the nearest town to the Cameron dam on the Thornapple, and at Ladysmith the largest town close by, fails to find a sympathizer with him or his alleged fight against corporate greed. He was given a plaudits of glory and martyrdom to which he never was entitled. He simply refused to abide by law or constituted authority. Nor does that mean that he alone was to blame or that the Chippewa Log and Boom company when he refused to permit logs to float by his property, did use every means to get him away as an obstruction. It is the belief now and was then among the men who lived there in his neighborhood, that he had a purpose in doing what he did, and that purpose was to make the logging company settle and as it is said, "pay through the nose."

For six years the contest raged between Dietz and the logging company. The question shorn of all collateral incidents was whether the log company had the right to float its logs down a river and through property which Dietz owned. He controlled both sides of the river in Sawyer county and at Cameron Dam stopped the drive and backed it up with his rifle. Dietz claimed damages and the logging company was willing to pay them. That has since been established. But Dietz refused to budge or to let the logs float. He had his price but the logging company would not pay it. Then came the fight over the payment of wages to a school teacher whom the town of Winter provided for the Dietz children and the wounding of Bert Horel, a member of the school board. It was to arrest Dietz on the charge of shooting Horel that the last battle was precipitated. He barricaded himself and fought until Harp was killed. Dietz made an outlaw of himself and like Tracy the bandit, was battling against law. He was entitled to no sympathy then and never has been since. He was entitled to pity for being a vain and foolish old man. It was not for shooting Horel that he was finally tried but for killing Harp.

It is recognized that there was a great weakness in the defense conducted by Dietz himself. It is probably true that Dietz did not know whether he had or had not killed Harp. He was barricaded in his home and shooting to kill. But as is stated in the beginning, the establishment of the killing of Harp was never complete and left the question still open. Dietz was convicted, largely on his bad record, sentenced to 20 years. Perhaps he has been chastened by his service in Waupun. No one will seriously object to the pardon unless it be the family of the deputy, Oscar Harp.

LET THE DEAD REST.
Senator Spencer has revived the controversy he had with President Wilson over the language used by Mr. Wilson in making promises of the use of the army and navy of the United States to maintain the solidarity of the small created states. It may serve to add to the evidence that at the time was accepted as final and conclusive that the president in his denial was quibbling and evading on the turn of a word or two. The League of Nations and Article X are as dead as Julius Caesar so far as the United States is concerned and the dead should be permitted to rest in peace.

The Minneapolis Tribune mourns somewhat about the failure of the present generation to remember and appreciate Eugene Field. However,

WHAT IS A MANDATE?

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN
Washington, D. C.—What is a mandate, and what is the relation of the United States to the various mandates that have been handed out by the League of Nations to its members?
The mandate is asserted by international law to be a new principle, a great deal of thought has been given to it in the past few years, and it is very likely that some of us are going to be called upon to fight about them. Therefore, let us see, if possible, what a mandate is.
In theory a mandate is an order from a league of the civilized nations of the world to one of those nations, making it responsible for the welfare of a certain nation or place of territory considered to be less civilized. The ideal of the mandate is that the civilized nations, instead of exploiting the backward ones, each as it can, should care for them (and they are responsible to the whole world for the results).
In practice, a mandate is permission, given by the powers which won the late war to one of those powers, to supervise the affairs of some backward country. The mandatory nation enjoys certain responsibilities to the league, a status which, if enforced, would be a higher level both from the economic and the humanitarian point of view. Of course, in this matter, everything really depends upon what the council of the league wants to do and is able to do.
The mandate also seeks to keep one nation from exploiting exclusively a backward territory, and to give the other members of the league certain rights in it. But it does not do as much as the nations which are not members of the mandate for the world. By reason of our failure to join the league, we have not, in the opinion of the members of the league, the same rights in mandatory territory that they have, although we have a full share in the war.

The council of the league of nations acknowledges three chief kinds of mandates. The A class mandates cover former Turkish possessions including Mesopotamia. The B class mandates cover islands of the Pacific, south of the Equator. The C class mandates cover islands in the Pacific, north of the Equator. The Palestine mandate is in a sense a fourth kind.
It is often said that A. in mandatory language, stands for oil, and C stands for cabbles. In the administration of the B class mandate, therefore, if anywhere, we will see exemplified that high international altruism which is supposed to be the motive of the mandate.

According to the terms of this mandate, Samon is to be administered by New Zealand. Nauru (Pleasant Island), in the Pacific Ocean, a short distance south of the Equator, by Great Britain; German Southwest Africa, by the Union of South Africa; and the former German possessions in the Pacific south of the Equator (other than Samoa and Nauru), by Australia.
These mandates of class B, provide for the promotion and material well-being of the territories under mandatory power. They prohibit slave trade and forced labor in these territories except for the essential public works for which adequate remuneration is paid. These mandates do not affect the individual ownership of land in the territories under mandatory rule. The taxes and general policy are more or less affected by such change of government. In accordance with the Treaty of Versailles, all of the former German possessions will be so affected.
Mandates prohibit traffic in arms and ammunition between the natives of the mandatory territories and other countries. Intoxicants for the natives are prohibited and military training of the natives is forbidden except for police and local defense forces necessary to keep peace. On the other hand, the power holding the mandatory right is not allowed to build military or naval bases or to establish any fortifications in the territory under its authority.
The free exercise of all forms of religious worship, is allowed and missionaries, nationals of states, members of the league of nations, shall be permitted to travel and reside in the territories and allow their callings. Provisions are made for educational freedom and advancement, also.

Mandatories are required to report to the league of nations annually on the territory under mandatory rule, and the measures taken to carry out their obligation in accordance with the above rulings.
The consent of the council of the league of nations is required to make any modification of the terms of a mandate.
This declaration is deposited in the archives of the league of nations and copies forwarded to all the powers signatory to the treaty of peace at Versailles. It is to be noted that the mandates of the league of nations, are granted special privileges, according to the terms of such mandates. Above, but associate powers are not necessarily included in these privileges on mandatory territories. The United States is, of course, an associate power, having never joined the league of nations or signed the peace treaty.
It is upon just this exclusion of our Government from a voice in these matters and above-mentioned privileges granted to members of the league of nations, that the United States Government protests. This exclusion is carefully stated in the Mesopotamia, the German and Yapan mandate drafts, as well as in the B mandates.
In a note to the Secretary of State, (then Bainbridge Colby) the president of the council of the league of nations (Gustavo da Cunha) says:
"The most fundamental contention brought forward by the American note is that the 'approval of the United States of America is essential to the validity of any determination which may be reached' respecting the mandates which have been, or may be submitted to the judgment of the council."

The United States was one of the leading actors both in the war and in the negotiations for peace. The rights which it acquired are not likely to be challenged in any quarter. But the American Government will itself recognize that the situation is complicated by the fact that the United States for reasons which the council would be the last to question, has so far abstained from ratifying the peace treaty, and has not taken place on the council of the league of nations.
To mandate A, the British Government proposes definitely that "Nationals of any country not a member of the league of nations have no rights whatever in Mesopotamia." This has been interpreted generally as a partial reply to the unanswered note of former Secretary Colby that the United States should share in the spoils of war so far as they relate to oil. This has also been construed as another effort to force our Government to enter the league, as the draft emphasizes that only members will be given rights and such members will have almost unrestricted trade and opportunities to develop the natural resources of Mesopotamia. The other terms of the Mesopotamia, or Near East mandate, are similar in effect to those of the B mandate already quoted. Because of the hot discussions over the A mandates the former Turkish possessions, the council has postponed its decision as to the final form of this until the next session which was to take place in May or June. The B mandate may also be definitely settled at that time.

Gene Field was known and loved in his life and after all that is even better than to wait for posterity to give him a place in the sun. After a man has been dead 25 years it really does not matter about public applause.
North Dakota has a keen sense of humor. One city, Bowbells, lost its chief of police because he pleaded guilty to gambling and promoted him to be superintendent of the water works.
Adding insult to injury is the suggestion to make Laundis mayor of Chicago. Perhaps he had rather be impeached.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST
THE ROBIN.
Oh, yesterday a robin came a-hopping round my place
And I was at the window with a sad and gloomy face.
And I was feeling peevish and a-thinking
When a fellow's discontented and the world is looking glum:
So I watched old Mr. Robin as he snugged a worm or two
And skipped around the garden in the way that robins do.
His eye was bright and shiny and his head was in the air.
And if his face was wide enough a smile had lingered there.
The breeze was blowing chilly and the ground seemed mighty greivous that the hare spots hurt his back.
But the robin wasn't growling that the hare
spots hurt his back.
And the robin wasn't kicking that his little feet were cold.
He was happy to be living as his bits of music told.
He was plump and he was chipper, and thought
I while watching him I thought, "What right Don't you ever get the notion that this right for life is grim?"
Do you ever tell your neighbors while you're sitting on a tree,
That food is not as plentiful as once it used to be?
Oh, feathered songster, when the days are cold and long
Do you ever waste a minute waiting everything is wrong?
As I watched old Mr. Robin at the business of his day,
With nobody near to help him or to pass the word his way,
To myself I think I muttered: "What's the matter
now with me?"
If a robin can be happy, why should I so dismally be?
All my troubles are as nothing to the life he leads out there.
Yet this minute he is singing and I'm knee deep in despair!"

Who's Who Today

B. CARROLL REECE
B. Carroll Reece, new member of congress from the first district of Tennessee, is the first man in that body who owes his nomination and election to the Boy Scouts. Reece is only twenty-eight years old, but he has had a very interesting life. He was a student at Plattsburg. He went overseas with the army and came back quite a hero in his home state.
Two of Mr. Reece's brothers, one in the army and the other in the navy, were both killed in action. He went back to the army and went to go into business. About that time the Boy Scout movement was getting strong in that part of Tennessee. He went to New York and organized a camp of scouts at which he gave some lectures on the value of the Boy Scout movement. He was elected to the Tennessee legislature and then to the United States congress.
Some of the Republican leaders in the district heard of the action of the scouts and got the cue from them. They talked the matter over with Reece, decided he would make a good candidate against Sam R. Sells, then holding the office, and put him on the ticket. He won.

OPINIONS OF OTHERS

"The Lonely Man of Congress"
There was a time when Senator La Follette was not yet arrived at the Fighting Bob stage, was called "the lonely man in Congress" and gloried in it. He listened to him then, but he held out hope of spell-binding the Senate in full session, and his hopes were not vain. Now he is seen again in his old character. A press correspondent reports:
"A pile of typewritten manuscript from which he read here by name lay in front of him. He seemed set for the afternoon. On the Republican side of the chamber two senators were in on the bench, three of them sat in a row talking and laughing in undertones. Save for these, La Follette talked to empty benches."

LOOKING BACKWARD

FORTY YEARS AGO
May 10, 1881. A local talent production, "The Belles of Janesville" was given at the Opera house last evening, but due to the heavy rain there were but a few present. However all the participants did well. Mrs. St. John and Mattie Deurnborn called forth special applause. Some of the songs were excellent. The performance will be repeated this evening.

THIRTY-ONE YEARS AGO
May 10, 1890. A test of the milk being delivered in Janesville by the state chemist, A. Madison showed that it is of a middle west quality, having a small margin over the rate of butter fat required by the state, the others all being rich. The directors of the Hanson Furniture company are in session considering bids for building the new factory.

TWENTY YEARS AGO
May 10, 1901. Another snag has been hit in the plans for the construction of the Beloit, Delavan Lake and Janesville road. That will be run between those three places. Atton built to run between those three places. The Town Board will not grant a franchise unless the road goes through that town and as the country is so hilly, this is almost impossible.

TEN YEARS AGO
May 10, 1911. The body of little Elsie Paroubeck, who was thought to have been kidnapped from her home in Chicago about the middle of last month and for whom a search was carried out in this city and the entire middle west, was found in a canal at Lockport, Ill., yesterday. It is thought that the drowning was an accident.

RICKETS CHILDREN
No clearly defined line can be drawn between health and disease. No actual distinction can be made between "functional" and "organic." In a very rough way, generally, it is said to be "healthy" when they are anywhere from 70 to 95 per cent healthy. Almost all of us are more or less diseased, whether we know it or not. Death never happens suddenly. It develops never comes without warning. We simply ignore the warnings. Organic disease is functional disease, from the first thing variation from health to the last stage. That's the only way we know that an individual has a disease. By the evidences expressed in a condition or alteration of his functions. Symptoms are altered functions.
Rickets is not merely the deformity which marks the late stage of the disease. It is also the comparatively slight functional disturbance which marks the beginning of the disease. Rickets is a defect of nutrition. It is a preventable defect.
According to competent authorities three-fourths of the infants of our cities have some degree of rickets, and according to some careful pathological studies, in which microscopic evidence was sought, probably more than three-fourths of the children of our cities have rickets—that is nutritional changes have already begun, but are as yet not discoverable by ordinary examination and have not seriously impaired the child's usual health.
I dislike nothing more than detailing the symptoms of any disease. For two reasons: (1) A lot of readers are sure to write and tell me that they and their cases are not rickets, and (2) A lot of readers may try on the symptoms and wear them even though they do not fit at all. But with rickets is a different story. I don't think any nostrum dealer or quack doctor finds it worth while to purport to have a cure for rickets. So we may safely mention some of the earlier indications of rickets. The child, headed toward rickets, becomes restless, ill-tempered, and no longer sleeps as well as usual. There is excessive sweating, especially about the head, the sweat being worst in the night. The child does not evince the desire to move about or attempt to walk that a normal child shows. The complexion is pale. The head is lumpy. The body is distorted (pottily) and there is excessive farnmentation.

Horoscope

The stars incline, but do not compel.
TUESDAY, MAY 10, 1921.
While Jupiter and Saturn rule strongly for good, according to astrology, Neptune has sinister power. The stars today seem to indicate a return to many of the old established standards of living, the so-called reactionary tendencies inclining toward domestic pursuits, home-burning and tilling the soil.
There is a sign forecasting success in great irrigation projects that will encourage colonization on a new scale and one that will be successful.
The west comes under a sway that should be favorable to business and commercial enterprises, but the Pacific coast will have new problems to solve.
Neptune is in a place supposed to stimulate greed and injustice, especially where the transactions of widely different races are involved.
Prophecies and prophecies were to appear, according to forecasts made at the time of the war and the weers declare that they are now incarnate, but not recognized, because they are teaching mankind through scientific and artistic channels.
Honors to women will be numerous as the year progresses, but one who has reached the highest place will end a great career.
Again changes in fashions that bring back modest attire are forecasted.
The churches are to face serious conditions in the coming year. There will be financial difficulties and seisms. These will not be limited to any sect and may reach all.
As the procession of men and women passes across the earth this year many distinguished persons will end their careers, suddenly.
The number of deaths among statesmen, public men and prominent women will be far greater than usual. Nervous diseases are to increase in number and they will cause many suicides.
The seers declare that the increase in thieves is one of the results of the war which has disturbed the balance of many minds and implanted a sense of the unfair distribution of wealth and opportunity.
Persons whose birthday it is have the augury of a steady, successful year. Journeys that will bring much happiness seem to be indicated.
Children born on this day will be persevering, headstrong and successful, in all probability.

The High Price of Meat

Abe Martin
How do you like the new cabinet?
The High Price of Meat
It is necessary to buy meat carefully and intelligently. Says a Government expert: "There is an apparent and a true price of meat. A fact that is not always considered. This simply means that the price per pound does not tell the whole story. So that the housewife may know what she is buying and paying for when she buys meat, the Daily Gazette has prepared for this week an official book showing the composition and food value of every different cut of meat. This book tells of the flavor, digestibility, and cooking of different cuts of beef, veal, lamb, mutton and pork. It also tells you what to get for the least price of different cuts of meat, but also the relation of the price to the quality." To get your copy of the book, use the attached coupon. Fill in your name and address, be sure to write plainly. Enclose two cents in stamps for return postage.

HAIR CUTS URGED TO AVOID ACCIDENTS IN INDUSTRIES
(BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.)
Appleton.—"Boss, if you have long hair, wear a cap or hair net while at work."
The above caption is one of the unique notices among the many posters appearing in the Appleton vocational school. Interesting the large attendance of industrial experts from all over the country here at the fourth annual Wisconsin industrial service conference, the principal aim of which is the promotion of greater safety in factories, offices, and by the general public.
The fact that gloves, loose or torn sleeves, long hair and neck ties caused many injuries is illustrated with the diagram near to wear them when working near machinery in operation. Legs burned by molten metal should have been encased in the right kind of leggings and shoes, it is warned.

'THE GIRL WHO HAD NO CHANCE'

By Marion Rubincam

CHAPTER XXIX.

The truth is that Myra was not making such an excellent son-in-law. And that was one reason why she wrote the letters she did to people in Marktown. In order to give an impression of herself as not sure about, she very naturally exaggerated.

Emily went away that Christmas for a week, to a party in Loudon. Myra, with all sudden rush of homesickness, wanted a night train, changed early in the morning at a junction and arrived in Marktown in time to surprise her family and have a late breakfast with them. She brought with her the prettiest of clothes her mother had made for her, several evening gowns which Emily had donated.

But Emily's and quite unaccustomed to her.

The first day her young brother took a violent dislike to her. "Emily said," she was improved by the third day her old surroundings had brought her back completely to her old self. It was this sweet, simple girl that Ruth found when Myra went to see her the day after Christmas.

Somehow, one could not be supercilious in contact with Ruth's life and work! Myra did not know what did it, but it was the tragedy she faced there that sobered her and gave her back her own sincerity.

But this did not last, either. Myra went back to the city after New Year's and in three hours fell again into her reflection of Emily's life.

But she had heard. And she resolved then to attract one man, at least enough to have him devoted to her exclusively. Emily had half a dozen—she wondered why. She was prettier than Emily, and younger. It never occurred to her that Emily had a magnetism and that she lacked it.

All the men were so much older—19, 20, 21, 22, 23, 24, 25, 26, 27, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32, 33, 34, 35, 36, 37, 38, 39, 40, 41, 42, 43, 44, 45, 46, 47, 48, 49, 50, 51, 52, 53, 54, 55, 56, 57, 58, 59, 60, 61, 62, 63, 64, 65, 66, 67, 68, 69, 70, 71, 72, 73, 74, 75, 76, 77, 78, 79, 80, 81, 82, 83, 84, 85, 86, 87, 88, 89, 90, 91, 92, 93, 94, 95, 96, 97, 98, 99, 100.

Myra stayed. And the winter slipped on. Then something happened that gave Myra an object.

Gabrielle Cartier had been playing in a revue where beautiful girls and beautiful costumes were relied upon for popularity. Gabrielle's very stunning looks got her the position of a small part which, however, paid her $100 a week. She was wanted for the next year, but when the star was taken ill, her place was given not to Gabrielle, but to another member of the company. Gabrielle, having acquired the actress' temperament, it is nothing new, promptly resigned and was furious because her resignation was accepted. She was out of a position and out of funds, and Emily had cheerfully taken her in.

"You can sleep on the living room couch," she said. "And we can still have guests there if you always keep it as a good bed."

But one day when Emily was out, Myra was lying down in her room. The door was open, the apartment was small. Gabrielle was serving tea to a couple of callers in the living room. Myra recognized their voices—both men, both friends of Emily's.

She had often dined with them. She had often danced with them. She had often been an intruder here.

But she had heard. And she resolved then to attract one man, at least enough to have him devoted to her exclusively. Emily had half a dozen—she wondered why. She was prettier than Emily, and younger. It never occurred to her that Emily had a magnetism and that she lacked it.

What Shall I Do?

Answers to Queries

"What and how?"—Speak the girl's name first, and ask her permission to present the man, like this: "Mary, may I present Mr. Smith? Tom, this is Miss Brown." or "Miss Brown, this is my friend, Mr. Smith." When a person offers you a "penny for your thoughts," and you don't want to tell them, just smile and say "they are not worth it."

"Pauline"—You blush when meeting the boys because you are 16 and self-conscious; time and experience will cure you all too soon, so don't let it worry you. You are not too young to go to basketball games with boys if they are boys your mother approves, and you are properly chaperoned.

A DAY'S RECIPES

Breaded Griddle Cakes—One and one-half cups stale bread crumbs, two eggs, one and one-half cups scalded milk, two tablespoons melted butter, one-half cup flour, one-half teaspoon salt, one tablespoon sugar.

Four milk over bread crumbs, add butter and cook for 15 minutes; add eggs well beaten, sugar, salt and baking powder. Mix and drop by spoonfuls on a hot greased griddle; cook on one side. When puffed full of bubbles and cooked on the edges, turn and cook the other side. Serve with butter and maple syrup.

Pineapple Salad—On leaves of crisp lettuce arrange slices of canned pineapple, a spoon of mayonnaise, thinned with the juice. Sprinkle with chopped nuts and place a cherry in the center.

Economy Meat Balls—This recipe requires less than one-half the usual meat, which is a decided advantage with meat prices as they are. Two cups dried bread one cup meat, one cup milk, salt and pepper. Mix the meat and crumbs, using salt and pepper. Break in the egg (unbeaten). Start final fixing with one-half cup of milk and keep pouring in milk slowly until the mixture is too soft to mold with hands. Drop from a large spoon into a frying pan containing one-quarter inch hot fat. These balls will brown quickly because of the milk they contain. Consequently, they should be covered until the first side is browned. Then remove cover and turn. When done, they will be creamy on the inside and crisp on the outside. Serve with chopped parsley or tomato gravy.

Tomato Gravy is easily made by adding one-half cup stewed tomatoes and a little extra thickening to the ordinary meat gravy in the pan in which the balls were fried.

NOVEL USES FOR FRUIT
Fruit Biscuits—Two cups flour, four teaspoons baking powder, one teaspoon salt, two tablespoons butter, one cup milk, one cup stewed fruit. Mix and sift the dry ingredients, cut in the butter and add the milk. Turn out on a floured board and roll thin. Cut in circles, place the fruit in the center and pinch edges together. Bake in a hot oven for 12 minutes.

Stewed prunes, pitted; stewed apricots or raisins may be used. The fruit should be well drained, but whole. If desired, sprinkle the fruit with a dash of powdered sugar and cinnamon mixed together.

Nut biscuits are a trifle heavier than ordinary biscuits, but are substantial and taste quite as good cold as hot.

Grapefruit—Soaking grapefruit in water overnight for several hours improves them very much, more juicy, less bitter and requires less sugar, also improves oranges and lemons.

Heart and Home Problems

BY ELIZABETH THOMPSON.
Letters May be Addressed to Mrs. Thompson, in Care of the Gazette.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: My husband is always making fun of my people, especially my mother, and doesn't appreciate what she does for us. I have three small children and they are always anxious for her to come.

It seems to think what his people say is just light and they don't do anything for us. We lived in a large town until a few months ago, when we moved to a small town where my husband said he could make money, but he doesn't make as much money, and we don't have things as convenient as we did in the large town. I want to move back there, as we go there to church and it would be much better. People say we made a mistake by moving here. How can I persuade him to move back?

Sometimes it takes infinite tact for a woman to keep harmony between her husband and mother. In the first place, I think you should notice every little thing that your husband's people do for you and show appreciation.

You may think they do nothing, but if you are observant you will notice that they do things which please your husband at least. Your kind feelings toward his people will make him more charitable toward your mother.

Love your mother with your whole heart and try by your devotion to make up for your husband's indifference. At the same time, however, you must be very careful not to talk "mother" to your husband or to point out to him how much she does for you. It is a great mistake to run the risk of antagonizing.

You are not in a happy frame of mind. It seems to me that you would enjoy life more if you picked out the best things and did not place so much importance on the unpleasant.

A small town lacks many of the attractions of a large city, but on the other hand it has its advantages. When you are annoyed by lack of conveniences, try to content yourself with the thought that it is better for your children to have country air than to be cramped up in a large city. Your husband may be making less money than he made in the large city, but I think you ought to be thankful that he works. Probably you would find that the firm where he worked in the city has laid off a number of men and has cut the pay of those remaining. Conditions have changed all over and will continue to change until there is further readjustment.

Do not try to make your husband go back to the city until you have reason to think he can get a position when he does go back. To urge and tease will defeat your end. Drop the subject of moving for a while and when you open it again use as much tact as you know how.

Dear Mrs. Thompson: I am a boy 15 years old and was falsely accused of stealing some pennies. All my friends are going to about it. Please tell me what to say, as I am shy and awkward and blush easily when embarrassed. Your advice will be appreciated. BROWNIE.

Try to take the teasing in a spirit of fun. Tell the boys they better keep close watch of their marbles and balls now that you are light-hearted. Ask them if they are as fond of pennies as you are. If you come back with a playful remark when they tease they will soon stop.

"Married": Your letter of comment is long, and I do not find it possible to print it at present.

90-Day "Leave" Given Schlaifer for Stalling in Bout

COMMISSION FAILS TO FIND EVIDENCE OF ANY "FRAME-UP"

Found guilty Monday by the State Athletic Commission at Milwaukee of stalling in his fight here April 27 with "Toledo" Johnny Lewis and refusing to heed referee Joe Schmeider's repeated warnings to mix it, "Kid" Schlaifer was suspended for a period of 90 days. This may also mean that he will be banned for the same period by the National Commission whose jurisdiction covers 18 states. If that body follows precedent, the Bernstein manager of Schlaifer was warned on his admission that he gave incorrect advice to the newspapers that a reputation in Wisconsin will mean the banning of his client and his club. Placed on the stand in his own defense, he admitted that there was nothing in his story that the "Kid" did not put forth his best efforts because he was "sick."

Hearing 2 Hours Long
Starting at 11 a. m., the hearing lasted for three solid hours. Masses of testimony were taken, the commission giving its decision late in the afternoon. The findings show that there was no evidence of a "frame-up" to the commission, to prove that the match was fixed in advance.

Neither Schlaifer nor Lewis was at the hearing although their managers, Bernstein and Art Winch, respectively, were told to have them there. Commissioner Litzinger expressed disapproval of the men not being on hand and in answer to a query as to reasons he was told that Schlaifer was preparing for an operation at Omaha for tonsillitis and Lewis missed his train.

Both Bernstein and Winch denied having "framed" the fight. Both declared that they had had no conversation prior to the contest with reference to the manner in which the bout was to be conducted.

Some Squabbling.
During the taking of testimony, several personal scenes were witnessed between Bernstein and Litzinger. In one place Bernstein accused Schmeider, University of Wisconsin athletic instructor, of having threatened in the clubs after the fight to "punch him in the nose."

"I said it," shouted Schmeider, "and I can too. What's more I will." "You can't," reported Bernstein. "You can," yelled Schmeider, "come on outside."

Litzinger broke in at this point, ordering the men to be quiet, although with a twinkle in his eye he called the "bitch" draw.

Bernstein Criticized.
Testimony was given by E. R. McKinnis, president of the Janesville athletic club, Charles H. Vire, president and matchmaker, Frank Schmeider, a director of the club and sporting editor of the Gazette, Frank Nickerson, inspector of the bouts and athletic director of the University of Wisconsin, L. J. Schuch, Milwaukee, manager of Dan Brown in the opening fight, Bernstein, Winch and Schmeider.

It was brought out during the hearing that Winch was acting only as temporary manager of Lewis at the time of the bout.

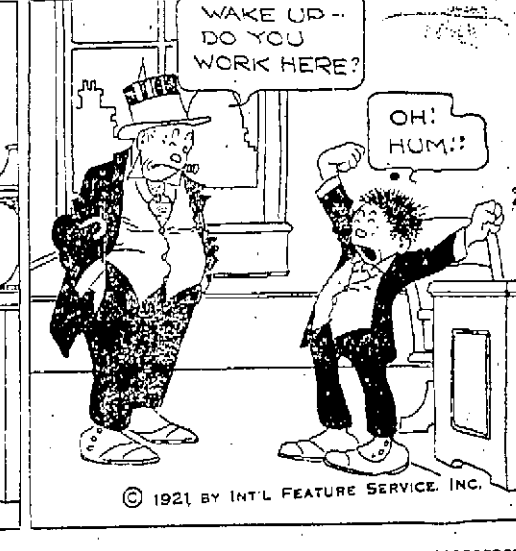

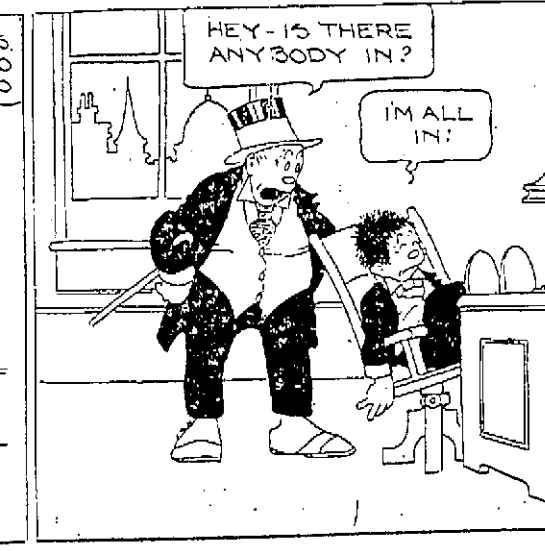

Bernstein was criticized by Litzinger during the taking of testimony for failure to notify the commission that Schlaifer was training in Chicago; for leaving his post at his man's corner; for failing to have his man's money in the hands of the commission in time; for running to the newspapers with stories. At the same time, the local club was instructed that while it will be given the privilege to have fighters train in other cities, to notify the commission of such arrangement before the fight.

Prizes Gazette.
Commissioner Litzinger after the hearing complimented the Gazette in its method of handling the situation and the aid which it gave to the commission in procuring data.

She suffered a fracture of her right leg above the knee. The child stepped in front of Riplinger's car unexpectedly in an attempt to cross the street in the middle of the block.

Long haired and bearded, the Isrealite House of David baseball team is camped Tuesday in Janesville. On Wednesday, they show their wares before the local fans in a clash with the Janesville Tractors at the fair grounds at 2 p. m.

One of the greatest drawing cards in the middle-west, the wanderers will start off the battle with Biz Mooney on the mound. Mooney is one of the club whom the Chicago Cubs have been trying to land. They play here again on Friday. On Thursday, the Tractors battle with them at Portage.

Manager Telling Tuesday was not certain what twirler he will pick to face the hairy visitors. It may probably be "Slim" Walsh, Lathrop and Christ, who wore his hair long.

Los Angeles.—The wrestling match between Ted Tye of Portland, middleweight wrestling champion, and Walter Miller, Los Angeles, former champion, was a draw.

took 500 individual tests to create the Adlon blend? It's a fact! These tests covered a long study of all cultivations of tobacco.

"Why, the makers of Adlon went so far as to analyze the personal tastes and prejudices of thousands of cigar smokers, so they'd get a cigar that would please the most finicky smoker."

"What is the tobacco, George, in Adlon?"

"Adlon is a real Havana filler and fine Sumatra wrapper cigar—mild yet full-flavored, richly fragrant and blended right."

"Here, is still another interesting point about the Adlon cigar."

"You won't find in Adlon any of the 'gums' that are common to most cigars and cause a disagreeable taste. No, sir! They're removed by an exclusive process and you can enjoy your Adlon as far down as you can retain a fingertip hold on it."

"Morning, George! Let me try the Adlon."

"You're showing good smoke-judgment. You won't find a smoother, finer-flavored or more satisfying cigar than Adlon at any price."

"Why do you think so, George?"

"Well, for one thing, while Adlon is mild, yet it has a true, rich tobacco taste that stays from the moment you light it until you get clear down to the last puff."

"I've been in the cigar business nearly all my life—began at the cigar-maker's bench. You can take my word for it, Adlon is all cigar."

"Do you realize, for instance, it
